A. Product Description

A Put Warrant requires a low level of capital investment and therefore enables investors to participate with a leverage in the price performance of the Underlying. It can be used as speculative instrument or for hedging purposes. With a Put Warrant the Holder profits from falling prices of the Underlying. A Put Warrant has a fixed Settlement Date. At expiry, the Holder receives the product of the Ratio and the amount by which the Strike Price exceeds the Final Reference Price. If the Underlying is equal to or above the Strike Price at expiry the Warrant expires worthless.

B. Prospects for Profits and Losses

Market expectation

A Put Warrant offers the possibility to benefit from changes in the prices of the Underlying with a leverage effect. Investors in a Put Warrant expect the Underlying price to fall.

Risk tolerance

Due to the leverage effect, the value of the Put Warrant will fluctuate more than the value of the Underlying. An investment in a Put Warrant therefore bears a higher risk than a direct one to one investment in the Underlying. Investors in this product should be experienced investors being familiar with derivative products, leverage and the Underlying. Investors are willing to take a higher risk compared with a direct one to one investment in the Underlying in order to achieve a higher profit potential.

Profits potential

A Put Warrant benefits disproportionately from a negative price performance of the Underlying. The profit potential for a Put Warrant is limited and reached when the price of the Underlyings drops to zero.

Loss potential

Holders may lose some or all of their invested capital but the maximum loss is limited to the initial capital invested. A Put Warrant loses value if the Underlying shows a positive performance or if the Underlying Currency depreciates against the Settlement Currency. Holders may lose some of their invested capital if the Cash Amount is less than the purchase price of the Put Warrant paid by the holder. Holders may also lose all of their invested capital if the Final Reference Price is equal to or above the Strike Price.

C. Significant Risks for Investors

General

An investment in the Warrants involves a high degree of risk, which may include, among others, price risks associated with the Underlying(s), interest rate, foreign exchange, market, time value and political risks.

Potential investors must have the knowledge and experience necessary to enable them to evaluate the risks and merits of an investment in the Warrants. Prospective investors should determine, based on their own independent review and such professional advice (including, without limitation, tax, accounting, credit, legal and regulatory advice) as they deem appropriate under the circumstances, that the acquisition and holding of the Warrants (i) is fully consistent with their financial needs, objectives and condition, (ii) complies and is fully consistent with all investment policies, guidelines and restrictions applicable to them and (iii) is a fit, proper and suitable investment for them, notwithstanding the clear and substantial risks inherent in investing in or holding the Warrants. In making such determination, an investor should consider carefully all the information set forth in the Final Terms and the Base Prospectus.

No Capital Protection

The Warrants are not capital protected at any time. There is a risk of partial or total capital loss, and therefore an investment in the Warrants is highly speculative, involving significant risk, including the possible loss of the amount invested, and should therefore only be considered by persons who can afford a loss of their entire investment.

Commodity Linked Risks

An investment in Warrants linked to a commodity or futures contracts in respect of a commodity entails significant risks not associated with an investment in a conventional debt security. On redemption, Holders will receive an amount (if any) determined by reference to the value of the Underlying, the Conversion Rate and the leverage. Accordingly, an investment in the Warrants may bear similar market risks to a direct investment in such futures contracts and investors should take separate advice accordingly.

The price of gold is primarily affected by global demand for and supply of gold. Gold prices can fluctuate widely and may be affected by numerous factors, including prevailing economic, political and financial conditions; interest rates; inflation; foreign exchange rates and supply and demand movements, caused by sales and purchases by producers, central banks, hedge funds and similar. Cost levels in major gold-producing countries such as South Africa, the United States and the Australia will also impact the price of gold. There are large above-ground stocks of gold which can be quickly mobilized. The greatest source of demand for gold is for use in jewellery, followed by industry. In recent years, the demand for gold as an investment has increased, while the demand for jewellery has declined. Gold markets have historically experienced extended periods of flat or declining prices, in addition to sharp fluctuations. Investors should be aware that there can be no guarantee that the price of Gold will rise or continue to rise nor maintain its purchasing power in the future.

Early Cancellation

The Terms and Conditions in the Base Prospectus provide for early redemption on the occurrence of force majeure, illegality and certain other events affecting the Underlying and/or the hedge, whereupon the Calculation Agent shall calculate the fair market value of each Warrant less the cost to the Issuer and/or its affiliates of unwinding any underlying related hedging arrangements, all as determined by the Calculation Agent in its sole and absolute discretion. Payment will be made in such manner as shall be notified to Holders in accordance with Condition 10 of the Warrants as set out in the Base Prospectus.

The amount that Holders receive as a consequence of such early cancellation may be less than the initial capital invested per Warrant and even zero. Holders who choose to reinvest monies received as a consequence of early redemption of the Warrants may be able to do so only in securities with a lower yield than the cancelled Warrants.

Issuer and Guarantor Risk

Warrants are unsecured obligations: The Warrants retention of value is dependent not only on the development of the value of the Underlying(s), but also the creditworthiness of the Issuer and the Guarantor, which may change over the term of the product. The Warrants are direct unsecured obligations of the Issuer and will rank pari passu with all other direct unsecured obligations of the Issuer. The obligations of the Guarantor under the Guarantee are unsecured obligations of the Guarantor and will rank pari passu with all its other present and future unsecured obligations, subject as may from time to time be mandatory under French law.

In addition, the Issuer's and the Guarantor's ability to fulfil their obligations under the Warrants may be affected by certain other factors, including liquidity risks, market risks, credit risks, cross-border and foreign exchange risks, operational risks, legal and regulatory risks and competition risks.

Secondary Market Risks

Under normal market conditions, the market maker appointed by the Issuer intends but is not obliged to maintain a secondary market on a regular basis throughout the life of the product. Neither the Issuer nor the Guarantor nor the market maker appointed by the Issuer is under any obligation to provide bid- or ask-prices for a specific order or volume and there is no commitment on a specific liquidity or on a specific market making spread. Hence investors cannot rely on being able to purchase or sell the product on a specific date or at a specific price.

Market Risk

The market value of, and expected return on, the Warrants may be influenced by a number of factors, some or all of which may be unpredictable (and which may offset or magnify each other), such as (i) the development of the value of the Underlying(s) (ii) economic, financial, political and regulatory or judicial events that affect the Issuer, the Guarantor, the Underlying(s) or financial markets generally, (iii) interest and yield rates in the markets generally, (iv) the time remaining until the Redemption Date (vi) the creditworthiness of the Issuer and the Guarantor.

Additional Risks

In addition, investors should read the section in the Base Prospectus entitled 'Risk Factors'.
